

Are you willing to COMMIT to AP?

YES NO

I never miss more than one day of school a month due to illness or other circumstances.
I plan on graduating in May and attending Grant for my full senior year.
I will take the AP test in May.
I will devote on average 1 hour per night per AP class for homework.
Consider extracurricular activities, employment, and family responsibilities that limit free time. Based on these obligations, I will have enough time to study for my AP class.
When I take standardized tests like MAP, PSAT, or the SAT, etc., I really try so the scores are reflective of my true ability.
I will complete schoolwork during the summer depending on the AP class in which I enroll.
I have the grit to be successful in a college-level course.
I understand that an AP course is a weighted course, so a grade of a C in that course is better than an A in a regular course.

If you responded No to any of the preceding statements, AP courses may not be for you.
